CONGRESS GETTING TIRED; MAY ASK SEPARATE PEACE

CLAIM UNITED STATES IS ON WRONG END OF "FREEZE OUT" GAME ON TRADE DEALS WITH "ENEMY" NATIONS

WILL DEMAND PROMPT ACTION

By L. C. Martin

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—Congress is becoming disgusted at the apparent "freeze out" in which the United States seems to many legislators to occupy the position of victim. There is a growing disposition among many legislators who regard as imperative the speedy resumption of peaceful relations with the central powers in Europe as the way of overcoming this. Some members of the House and Senate who have been answering this question intend to urge President-elect Harding to initiate separate peace negotiations and commercial treaties with Germany and Austria as soon as he takes office.

WILL EXTEND MARTIAL LAW ZONE IN IRELAND

Dublin, Dec. 11.—Reports of Sin Fein raids outside the martial law zone today will probably result in an extension of the military area, according to unofficial advices. Raids occurred at Londonderry and Armagh.

Dublin, Dec. 11.—Sin Feiners and police engaged in a battle here today following discovery of a bomb factory in a bicycle shop on Parnell street. One man was shot and three arrests made. The police reported the confiscation of a large quantity of finished bombs and material.

EX-DOUGHBOYS FALL WELL BEFORE STUDENTS

Last evening Captain Neff led his teamates to their second victory this season, bowling over the strong Legion quintet 36 to 16.

This score speaks well for the high school lads, especially the guards, for to hold two forwards such as C. Mitchell and Mark Linn to three baskets is quite a feat, as Linn and Mitchell are without a doubt the best forwards that ever topped baskets for the Red and Black in former years.

The game started by the high school mowing first, but the Legion quickly evened matters and for about five minutes the play was fast and furious, neither team being able to score, but then C. H. S. found her stride, had rapidly piled up a good lead on the Legion. At this stage, Coach Staff ran N. Smith and Rex Ammerman in at the guard posts and Martin took Norris' position at right forward, but even with only two of the original varsity in the line-up, the school boys continued to hold their own, Scrubby Martin ringing three baskets while in the fray, Nate Smith and R. Ammerman stemming the army's cavalry attack well.

The soldiers started the second half with three new men in their line-up, but they could not stop their young opponents, as C. H. S. rolled up sixteen points and held the doughboys to seven tallies, Linn scoring the seven points on foul shots.

Ammerman led the Red and Black in field goals, scoring 14 points, Neff and Martin second with three baskets each, and although Norris scored but one basket, he played a bang-up game, his passing enabling C. H. S. to tally many points.

For the American Legion, Linn topped his teammates with 14 points, C. Mitchell making the other basket. The foul shooting of Neff and Linn was par excellence, Neff dropping 9 out of 10 tries thru the iron ring; Linn scoring 10 times in 15 attempts.

The lineup:

Legion	C. H. S.
Linn	L. F. Ammerman
Norris	L. F. C. Mitchell
Neff	C. Pluck

WELL KNOWN TEACHER DIES

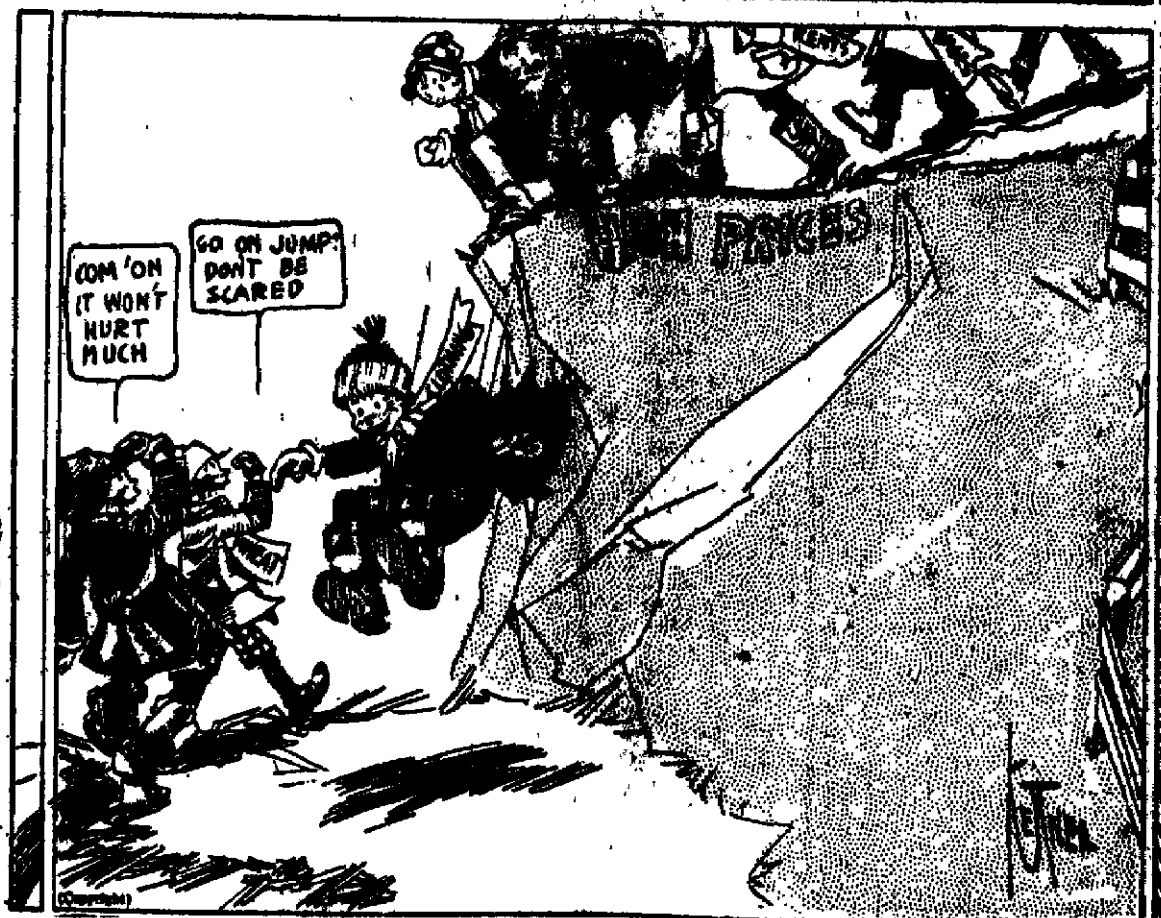

Alfred C. Rapp was born in Avenger, Wurtemberg, Germany on February 13, 1874 and was therefore in the forty-seventh year of his age. He emigrated to this country with his parents in the centennial year 1876. Three years later the father died and the boy had to struggle for a livelihood. He tried various occupations but in the year 1895 decided to prepare for the profession of teaching. Determination and thoroughness were the characteristics prominent in his life at this period. He graduated from the Normal School at Lock Haven, Pa., in 1902. From that time until two years ago he followed his profession of teaching and attained considerable of a reputation both as a student of nature and as a teacher. In 1918 the influenza gripped him and from that time until his death the white plague, tuberculosis took possession of him. For a time during the past two years he was rural mail carrier but this work was too strenuous for him. He sought help at the Sanitarium at Cresson, Pa., where death overtook him, Monday, December 6, 1920. He was a good tenor singer and great student of rocks, plants and insects. Many of his pupils cherish his memory for the inspiration and help he gave them.

He leaves to mourn an aged mother, a wife and four children: Joyce, Mabel, Arthur and Gerda.

Funeral services were held in the Presbyterian church of Kylertown, Pa., at 11:00 a. m., Thursday, December 9, 1920, conducted by the Methodist minister, Rev. Mr. Ritzman, of Munson, Pa., and the pastor of the Presbyterian church of Winburne, Pa., Benjamin Thomas. Interment took place at the Presbyterian cemetery, Kylertown.

KNOX TOWNSHIP ALIVE TO OUR HOSPITAL NEEDS

Boardman Contribution Increases Total To Amount Away Above Their Assigned Quota

LOCAL CAMPAIGN NEXT WEEK

Interest in the endowment and building fund campaign of the Clearfield hospital continues unabating throughout Clearfield county, the different districts, reporting most generous response on the part of their people, who realize the immense asset this wonderful institution is to this section of the county.

Knox township went over the top in fine style when the subscriptions from Boardman were reported to Hospital Drive headquarters. The Boardman committee is as follows: Major C. E. Whitney, George Lennox, James Moran, James Null. They reported $1575 yesterday and as they had previously sent in $1,226.25 this made the Boardman total $2801.25.

Added to Boardman's handsome gift was $319 from New Millport and $219 from Maple Run, which makes the grand total for Knox township $3339.25.

The quota for the township was $2,000, which plus Knox township $1339.25 to the good.

The campaign closes January 1st, 1921. Get busy.

GREAT INTEREST BEING SHOWN IN MINERS ELECTION

President John Brophy and Vice President Marks Opposed For Re-election

DISTRICT NO. 2 IS RADICAL

Keen interest is being shown by the members of the U. M. W. of A. in this district in the approaching election of national and district officers, scheduled for next Tuesday, December 14.

John Brophy, president of District No. 2 is opposed for re-election by James Feeley, of Dunlow. George Bassett, of South Fork, who had announced himself as a candidate for the presidency has withdrawn.

A three cornered fight is on for the district vice-presidency. James Marke, the present incumbent, is opposed for re-election by Dominic G. Lotti, of Nantyglo and John McCrory of Flinton.

There are four candidates for the national board membership made vacant by the death of William Donaldson. John Ghizzoni, of Wishaw; Joseph Pogginie, of Cresshaw; William McCune, of Arcadia, and T. P. Dolan, of R-sitter, seek the office.

Richard Gilbert has no opposition for secretary-treasurer of the district organization. Herman Carlett has no opposition for district board member of Territory 5 and John Yusko has no opposition as district organizer.

It seems to be the general opinion of the miners, that Brophy will have no trouble in securing re-election as president and that Marks' candidacy will be successful. Ghizzoni, at present district auditor, is making a strong fight for the office of national board member and it is believed will carry his own territory almost solidly.

Interest in the national fight is likewise keen. John L. Lewis is op-

WANT DISABLED EX-SERVICE MEN TAKEN CARE OF

American Legion Will Make Determined Effort For Adequate Appropriation

CLAIMS NOW BEING HEARD

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The American Legion is squarely behind the demand of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, the Federal Board for Vocational Education and the United States Public Health Service for adequate appropriations for the next fiscal year with which to take care of the disabled men of the world war.

Speaking on this point in the midst of a recent conference with the heads of these three bureaus, F. W. Galbraith, Jr., National Commander, assured them that they should ask Congress for enough money to do the job efficiently and that if there was any disposition to cut down their estimates for the sake of economy, the Legion would be willing to go to bat with them before the Congressional committees.

The bureaus are asking for $325,000,000 for the next fiscal year and are already being heard by the Appropriations Committee of the house. The Public Health Service is asking 50,000,000 for hospitalization and 35,000,000 for the erection of hospital; the Vocational Board requests 78,000,000 for the rehabilitation of former service men; and the Bureau of War Risk Insurance asks $100,000,000 for paying the compensation claims of the disabled. The Appropriations Committee has already threatened to cut the estimate of the Vocational Board from $78,000,000 to $65,000,000.

posed for re-election as national president by Robert H. Harlin, of Seattle, Washington, and Alexander Hewatt, of Pittsburgh, Kas., is offering strong opposition to Phillip Murray, of Pittsburgh, for the vice presidency. William Green has no opposition for secretary-treasurer.

Miners of this district seem to favor the candidacy of Harlin and Hewatt and it is generally predicted that both will carry District No. 2 with substantial majorities.

Last evening about fifteen friends of Miss Grace Underwood surprised her at her home on Tenth street, in honor of her birthday.

The police learned three weeks ago, the wife going to live with Bernard in the Keesport. The husband entered the house without knocking on the door and shot at his wife before she could get away for help.

JILTED, KENTUCKY GIRL

New York, Dec. 11.—Friends of Miss Tevis, who planned revenge for the man responsible for the death of her sister, Mrs. Joseph C. Cabernet, who was a New York banker. Friends of the girl whose family is one of the most prominent in Kentucky, investigated the case and the girl committed suicide because she was jilted. She had planned to elope with a man of the "lounge lizard" type who was at the St. Regis Hotel and who thought she was going to be wired Richmond, Ky., and found she was not. The girl was supposed her to be. The dead girl's friends say they are looking for her, breaking the engagement. The law cannot touch her, her friends say they can and intend to do so. The girl's case whose name the family is withholding, faces a hearing. Miss Tevis' friends say.

HARDING'S FAREWELL SPEECH

For orators in American history are more striking than the confessions this week of the outgoing and incoming presidents of the United States, with the Congress as their forum. The two men differ diametrically in their habits of thought, methods and methods of expression. Their difference goes deeper, however, than personal peculiarities, and manifests itself in the attitudes which they bear toward fundamental questions of procedure and principle.

Senator Harding put his finger upon the essential difference between the old and the new administrations, between Mr. Wilson and himself, and between success and failure in government while he spoke of the necessity of co-operation between the executive and legislative branches. When he spoke of the necessity to co-operation between the two branches of government, and spoke of his forthcoming administration and sympathy and support of Congress, he struck a doubly responsive chord—a chord that revived certain memories of melancholy dissonance with the White House, and other recollections of pleasant association with the speaker.

With profound respect for Mr. Wilson, and with sympathy for him in his affliction, it must be recorded now, as it will be recorded by history, that his administration was principally injured by his inability or refusal to co-operate with Congress. When he tested his prestige too severely by asking the country to give him a Democratic Congress with which to fight a national war, on the ground that Republicans could not be trusted, he was rebuffed by the people and a hostile Congress set against him. Then came the duty of co-operation, for the sake of the public welfare, and unfortunately the record shows that Mr. Wilson performed this duty reluctantly. In the final struggle, when co-operation with the Senate was indispensable to the success of the plan upon which he had staked his administration, his fame, and even his life, Mr. Wilson refused to co-operate. With fantastic logic came the terrible reprimand from the people, and the remainder of the term is negligible.

But, when they see beauties in other forms of government, they are not visible in that provided by the Constitution. They see the ministerial responsibility in England, and parliamentary government in France, and democratic dispatch in Italy and so on. They say the founders of the republic made this government too weak in its separation of the executive, legislative and judicial powers. They contend that this government cannot function unless Congress virtually obeys a strong executive, or unless the executive surrenders to a strong Congress.

This contention is disproved by actual test and experience. No surrender is necessary on anybody's part. A strong executive and a strong Congress can work together if they will. It is their duty to work together. If they fail, the people will rebuke them. In the lesson of November 2 without meaning or is it to be forgotten? Men of good sense will ponder the reason why the people gave such overwhelming majorities against the administration—for the administration was on trial. We believe the fundamental reason for the adverse verdict was because of the failure of the administration to co-operate with Congress, as contemplated by the Constitution. The people do not watch politics and cannot afford to recast the form of their government every year or two to please any one. They elect men to office, expecting them to perform their duties according to the spirit of the Constitution. They detest official and personal quarrels waged at the expense of the public business.

The presence that a strong executive intends to co-operate with Congress during the four years beginning March 4 next, for the welfare of America first and then for the welfare of the world, is most gratifying evidence that the people know how to manage their government.—Washington Post.

IN THE race for preference, George's favorite material for blouses, but the batiste is gaining and may at least catch up with it. When the matter of new blouses comes up for consideration and turns one's thoughts toward spring, it will be wise to consider both these materials for new importations reveal the batiste blouse with fine lace and tucks furnishing its embellishment, represented in many dainty and beautiful models. An unending variety of blouses, starting with strictly tailored styles and ending with handsome befrilled designs, all rivaling georgette in daintiness, promise to blossom out with the springtime. They will soon be on display in the shops, and clever needlewomen will busy themselves copying them.

In the meantime georgette, embellished in silk or beads, fills in the interim between seasons. In such satisfactory models as those shown in the picture. At the left of the two shown a slip-over model has a round neck bordered with a design worked out in French knots or simulated French knots in several colors. In the embroidery, as in the georgette, the choice of colors is governed by individual taste, making opportunity for much variety and unusual becomingness. A full peplum is gathered on at the waist line in this blouse with embroidered motifs at the corners made by the slashes. One sleeve is also decorated in this manner. A narrow belt of velvet ribbon repeats the dominant color in the embroidery.

Another slip-over model, at the right, is made of georgette in a dark color. It also boasts a peplum, short and split at the sides, and using the same ornamentation as the body of the blouse in bands that extend from shoulder to hem. Both silk and beads are used in the making of these bands. Three-quarter length sleeves are lengthened by means of a ruffle set on with a satin piping which extends the sleeve nearly to the wrist. Blouses of this character do service for tailored and other costumes.

TRADE IN CLEARFIELD TOWN

Don't Fool Yourself Into Thinking That It Adds Dignity and Exclusive- ness to Buy Away From Clearfield

REMEMBER, THE CLEARFIELD MERCHANTS ARE SUPPLIED BY THE SAME MANUFACTURERS AS THE LARGE CITY STORES. THEY HAVE THE SAME LINES FROM WHICH TO CHOOSE AND INVARIABLY WILL SELECT THE BEST AND SELL AT A LOWER PRICE—LOWER SELLING EXPENSES OF THE HOME MERCHANT MAKES IT POSSIBLE.

SOME PEOPLE WHO ARE LABORING UNDER A FALSE IMPRESSION THAT IT ADDS TO THEIR DIGNITY AND EXCLUSIVENESS, TAKE GREAT PLEASURE IN BOASTING THAT THEIR WEARING APPAREL AND OTHER PERSONAL BELONGINGS COME FROM SOME BIG CITY STORE. IT MATTERS NOT SO MUCH IF THE "METROPOLITAN" DEALER WHO SUPPLIES THEM IS SOME OBSCURE MERCHANT ON A SIDE STREET, OR A STORE WHICH CATER ONLY TO THE SO-CALLED 'BARGAIN SEEKERS' AS LONG AS THE PACKAGE WHEN DELIVERED, BEARS THE METROPOLITAN LABEL.

These persons seem to find real joy and delight in saying, "I bought this dress at Rothchild," or "just see the shoes I purchased today in Chicago for $1.98;" but these boasts have the desired effect only upon those who in nature are like the boasters.

To the truly refined and to the loyal home-buyer such boasts are regarded as nothing less than vulgar.

While as a matter of fact there is absolutely no ground for the belief that an article is better or "more exclusive" because it comes from out of town.

The up-to-date Clearfield merchants are in constant touch with the leading markets of this country as well as those of the foreign cities. They make frequent trips to the big buying centers and bring to Clearfield the very best that is to be found anywhere.

THEY BUY FROM THE SAME MANUFACTURERS AS THE LARGE CITY STORES. Great care and pains are taken in the selection of the stock as the Clearfield merchant wants to bring to his home customers and friends only the very best values.

A careful investigation and comparison will usually find these so-called "exclusive" articles right here at home at a much lower price than in the larger city stores. Lower rents, lower selling expenses, smaller profits, etc., make this saving possible.

While foreign buying has not become a serious menace, it does exist to an extent which we believe will be greatly lessened if you will but think seriously over this important matter before you carry your money out of town or send it to a far away mail order house.

THESE MERCHANTS WILL SAVE YOU BOTH TIME AND MONEY. Try them. Keep your dollars in Clearfield.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

WOODLAND

Mrs. V. G. Henderson has gone to Akron, Ohio, to visit relatives.

Mrs. J. C. Leighow left Wednesday morning for Danville, where she will spend Christmas with relatives.

Calvin Ackley, of Greenville, near Erie, Pa., is on a visit to friends in Woodland. Cal. is an old Woodland boy and no doubt likes to visit friends here and see his old stamping grounds.

Talk about strange processions, one passed through town on Sunday afternoon which was strange indeed. It was an automobile being drawn by two horses and followed by a buggy.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Davis and Mrs. Anna Erickson and daughter Lillian of Clearfield were guests on Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Palmer.

Our nimrods are returning from the hunting grounds. M. A. Robb and Lloyd Peters, W. B. Walker and Bruce Adams of Mock's Run camp are home. Both Robert and Lloyd Peters got a deer. Guy Grafius and Ed. Wisor, of Crooked Run camp and Harvey Barger, Burt McDowell and N. G. Stewart of Still House camp returned home, neither of the latter two camps having secured any deer.

Thomas Wilsoncroft of the Seth Maine club shot a fine deer one day this week out near Mose Leigey's place but it is said if Henry Maine or Harry Parks had been better shots, Tom would not now be covered with glory and had they killed the deer a hot debate that later is said to have occurred and broke up the camp would have been avoided. Some very amusing stories are being told about the members of the different camps. The Mocks Run camp have a bee story they are telling. They also tell a story on Bruce Adams about his quick trip back to camp on Sunday evening after visiting the Bigler folks at the Gun and Rod camp. They say he made the trip of two miles in about 3 minutes and chased all the deer and jack rabbits out of the woods on the way besides shying at a big black stump which he could not decide was a man or a bear.

GERMANY MAY JOIN ENGLAND IN COAL DEAL

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—From authoritative sources it is learned that England has made concrete proposals to Germany for British and German co-operations in opening and building up trade with Russia.

Disparaging that anything will come off the numerous conferences with America for American-German co-operations in Russia, which would be an arrangement preferred by Germany to the combination with England, there is a growing disposition to listen to the British flattery and cooing, and it is openly declared that at least some of the propositions now being made will be accepted.

It is understood here the British hope that their line up with Germany in Russia will give them an advantage over America in trade with Russia.

In Wilhelmstrasse there was a disposition to avoid the question. It was finally admitted that Great Britain had made proposals, but it was qualified with the statement that the proposals have been made to large German industries and not to the government, although with the knowledge of the government.

CONTROVERSY ON CABLE RIGHTS IS DEADLOCKED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The controversy between the American representatives in the International communication conference and Japan over cable rights on the island of Yapp, which is the key to the Pacific cable situation. England and Italy are standing by the United States, but as majority rule does not prevail, matters are in deadlock.

Strong probability exists that the conference will break up without an agreement on the subject, which is of the utmost importance to America. Japan asks that the controversy be referred to the league of nations, to which the United States will not consent.

BLANCHARD HUNTER SAYS WILD CAT KILLED DEER

A short time ago Toner Walker, of near Blanchard, was out in the mountains and came across the carcass of a fawn and knew a wild cat had killed it and was feeding upon it. He took traps and placed them around the carcass and when he went back later he had the cat, and a big one at that, measuring five and a half feet from the mouth to its tail. He kept it in a barrel for a week and then shot it, as he could not get enough feed to keep it alive. This experience shows how wild cats prey upon young deer, and there should be a decided effort to kill them all off.

WAGON LOADS OF NEED LIKE THIS IN POLAND are a commonplace sight on hundreds of roads in Europe. More than 1,300,000 Polish children received five American meals every day during the height of last winter. The winter the situation will undoubtedly be worse as it will be in Austria and other portions left economically dazed by war. To prevent the greatest tragedy to children that the world has ever known eight American organizations under the name of the European Relief Council are sending $2,500,000 to food and medical assistance.

LESSON FOR DECEMBER 12

WHAT THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN IS LIKE.

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 13:44-46.
GOLDEN TEXT—The kingdom of heaven is not meat and drink, but righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost.—Rom. 14:17.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Mark 4:26-29; Luke 13:18-21.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Sowing in Good Ground

JUNIOR TOPIC—Short Stories That Jesus Told

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Christ's Joy of Finding the Lost.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Supreme Importance of Christ's Sacrifice for the Lost.

1. The Parable of the Man Seeking Pearls (vv. 44).

The common interpretation of this parable that Christ is the hid treasure for which the sinner must give up everything in order to buy salvation is false, for the following reasons:

1. Christ is not hidden in a field but has been lifted up and made a spectacle to the world.

2. Nobody has ever been obliged to buy the world in order to get Christ.

3. Salvation cannot be purchased for it is God's free and gracious gift.

4. No warrant is ever held out to a man to conceal his religion after he has obtained it.

In order to find ground that is safe and that we may appreciate its beauty and symmetry let us break up the parable into its component parts:

1. The field. This is the world (v. 38).

2. The treasure. In Psalm 135:4 we are told that Israel, the chosen people is his treasure. The same truth is set forth in different places and ways (Deut. 7:8-9; 14:2; 28:13; 32:8, 9). The kingdom of heaven as to its true relation and bearing is now hidden Christ was primarily sent to the Jews. It was for their sake, the hid treasure that He sought the field.

3. The purchaser—the Son of God (John 3:16).

4. The purchase price. This was the precious blood of Jesus Christ. God's beloved Son, which is worth infinitely more than silver and gold and the treasures of earth (1 Pet. 1:13, 19; Isa. 63).

5. The Parable of the Merchant Seeking Pearls (vv. 45, 46).

The view that this merchantman represents the sinner seeking salvation is contrary to the whole teaching of Scripture. This would make the sinner to be seeking for Christ, while Christ is as indifferent as a lifeless pearl. The whole burden of revelation is that man, since the fall of Adam in the garden of Eden, has been hid away from God, and that the Father, Son and Holy Spirit are all actively engaged in seeking for lost men.

1. The merchantman. He is without question Christ. He is actively engaged in the search for pearls. In this search he discovers one pearl of great price.

2. The purchase price. The merchantman sold all—impoverished himself in order to buy the pearl. Christ impoverished Himself (Phil. 2:8-9) to purchase the one pearl of great price by His own precious blood (1 Pet. 1:13, 19; Eph. 5:25). Salvation is without money and without price.

3. The pearl of great price. This is the church. Christ, the merchantman, will find other pearls of great value, but the peerless gem set above all others will be the church which He has purchased with His own blood. This truth is in harmony with the general teaching of Scripture, which sets forth the different bodies of the redeemed.

111. The Parable of the Dragnet (vv. 47-50).

This parable gives us a picture of the consummation of the kingdom.

Note the parts of the parable:

1. The sea. This word when used in a figurative sense denotes peoples or multitudes (Dan. 7:3; Rev. 17:15). This means, then, that out of this world shall be gathered a multitude of people, good and bad.

2. The dragnet. The word "net" is properly translated dragnet. The dragnet cast into the sea, then means the preaching of the Gospel in this age.

3. The net drawn to the shore when full. This means that when God's purpose is made full regarding the preaching of the Gospel in this age, account will be taken of the results.

4. Assortment made by the angels.

"The Devils Passkey"

One of the four greatest 1920 filmdom productions.

SYNOPSIS OF THE FILM:

On the left—the handsome Captain—known to have been the lover of the beautiful Countess de Trouvère, who is watching him—said to be great friends at present with Mrs. Warren Goodwright, who stands with downcast eyes while the genial Captain compliments her author-husband on the success of his play. Goodwright, who does not yet know that his play-plot is the story of his own wife's discretions with the very man whose hand he clasps—but Paris knows it—and Mrs. Goodwright knows that Paris knows it, but she can not leave Paris—can not escape. Dumbly suffering, she can only stand and wait for the axe to fall. That's Von Stroheim! The captain's act of letting you, shivering, see the sharp blade descending. The art of closing all avenues of escape. And yet the surprise-ending of "The Devils Passkey" is just as logical as any of the pretentious action which precedes it. Why not see, at your Universal Exchange, just what this thing is?

CLEAN PENS ARE URGED FOR PIGS

Roundworm Held Responsible for Many Deaths and Large Proportion of Runts.

BADLY DRAINED LOTS CAUSE

Young Animals Farrowed and Kept in Places Infested With Eggs of Parasites Are Almost Certain to Pick Up Some of Them.

Investigations reported in a recent technical publication of the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, disclosed additional evidence of the importance of keeping young pigs in clean pens that have not been contaminated by other swine.

A roundworm of pigs, known as Ascaris suum, is held responsible not only for many deaths among swine but for a large proportion of the runts among these animals. Development and perpetuation of the roundworms is fostered by badly drained and manure-covered hog lots, which are on this account dangerous to young pigs and not good for pigs of any age.

Soil May Become Infested. Eggs of the parasite may remain alive in soil for five years and even longer. Places occupied by pigs harboring the adult worms in their intestines will become badly infested with the eggs. Pigs farrowed and kept in such places are certain to pick up many of these eggs, and even suckling pigs are liable to swallow eggs present in dirt adhering to the teats of the sows.

Investigations by the bureau have proved that after the eggs have been swallowed and have hatched in the intestine the young worms do not immediately settle down but penetrate the wall of the intestine and travel to the liver and lungs. From the lungs they crawl up the windpipe and then down the esophagus and return to the intestine. Only after they have passed through the lungs do they establish themselves in the intestine and grow to maturity.

May Cause Pneumonia. In passing through the lungs the young worms cause more or less damage to these organs. Pneumonia may result and the animal may die about a week or ten days after infection. Symptoms of this pneumonia among pigs are commonly known as "thumps." Not all cases of "thumps" come from this source but the worms are frequently the cause. Young pigs are more susceptible than older pigs to infection and are also more likely to suffer severely from migration of the young worms through the lungs.

There is no treatment for the lung stage of the parasite. If the pig survives he may later be treated with worm remedies to remove the worms from the intestine. In such cases, however, it commonly happens that the animal has been so seriously injured by the worms during their migration through the lungs that even after their expulsion from the intestines the pig is unable to make up for the setback he has received, although he does better than if allowed to go untreated.

FOWLS TOO FAT TO LAY EGGS

Ohio Specialist Says Hen Becomes Fat Because She Is Naturally a Poor Layer.

Can a hen get too fat to lay? Is a question frequently asked by poultry keepers. In answer to this question E. L. Dakin, poultry specialist at the Ohio State university, says: "As a general rule, no. A hen becomes fat because she is naturally a poor layer. Instead of laying eggs she lays on body fat. Some fowls which consist of corn and no animal protein, such as meat scraps and tankage, contain no elements capable of producing eggs."

WITH THE HUNTERS

Leyl Draucker, the Luthersburg hunter, who was shot in the leg last week, has returned to the cabin of the Luthersburg Hunting club in the mountains near Rockton, and will serve the remainder of the season as camp custodian.

Harold McWilliams, of Driftwood, was the first runner to be killed in the woods as the result of a deer hunting accident, according to reports from the deer country that have reached this city.

The young man was shot to death by his own gun when a stump upon which he was leaning, broke under his weight Thursday afternoon. The accident happened near Driftwood.

McWilliams was an ex-service man and widely known. He was 26 years of age and had been employed as an operator for the P. R. R. at Driftwood, in the scale office. Thursday afternoon he was leaning over his gun and against the stump, with his hands between his stomach and the muzzle of the rifle. The stump broke and the weapon was discharged the bullet coursing through both hands and his abdomen. Help was quickly at hand but he died within an hour, despite the efforts of physicians.

Wheeler Swamp Camp got its first buck this morning when Arthur Fister downed a nice spike buck while the buck was bouncing over the Penfield road.

The Moose Creek club or Schrot camp landed another nice spike buck this morning. The deadly shot lies between Thomas Lawhead and John Zimmerman. It is thought that Zimmerman will claim the deer as he is the larger.

Tuesday morning Thomas Watson of near Heshbon, an employee of the Watson Coal Company, left his home for a short hunting trip, promising to be back about noon. When he failed to return in the evening and the night passed without any word from him, friends and relatives formed a searching party, finding the dead body of Mr. Watson in the hills some half dozen miles from his home. The man had a severe gunshot wound in one of his legs and also a knife wound in his back. It is the presumption that Mr. Watson received his leg injury when his shotgun was accidentally discharged. Evidently he had made an effort to reach some habitation, for the trail of blood was followed for several hundred yards. It was also evident that he had attempted to start a fire but was too weak to do so. When found a rough yard had been tied tightly above the wound in his leg, in an effort to stop the flow of blood. Evidently greatly weakened by the loss of blood and suffering intense agony and further knowing that he would ultimately die if help were not soon coming he deliberately ended his sufferings with the knife wound in his neck. Mr. Watson leaves his widow and several children.

SEXOMETER TELLS WHETHER EGG IS MALE OR NOT

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 10.—"Sexometers" are making eggs a matter of grammar. It perhaps will soon be incorrect to refer to an egg as "it." The precise gourmet will say to the waiter: "This egg is olfactory. Take him away."

"Sexometers" are an invention of F. J. Fellows, of Winnipeg. They determine whether an egg is a potential rooster or an embryonic hen. The inventor declares they will revolutionize the poultry industry. When the sex of eggs can be told it will be possible to send most of the rooster eggs to market and retain the hen eggs for the up-building of the home flock.

The "sexometer" consists of a piece of cork around which copper wire is wound and from which is suspended a pendulum of wire ending in a flat piece of aluminum-plated substance. To operate it the cork is held in one hand and the egg in the other. If the egg is male the pendulum will swing in a circle. If it is female the pendulum will swing back and forth like that of a clock. Why this is true is the inventor's secret. Mr. Fellows says that in experiments covering six months the instrument has proved its clairvoyance up to 99 per cent. of the eggs tested and later hatched.

FARM ACCOUNTS AID TO BETTER PROFITS

Quite Essential to Any Well-Thought-Out Plan.

Farmer Enabled to Meet Conditions in Way That Will Give Him Greatest Net Returns on Various Crops He Produces.

Farming is a business, and, to be successful it must be conducted in a businesslike manner. It involves the production and sale of commodities, just as does manufacturing. The business man, whether in factory or on farm, should be constantly considering two questions:

1. What profit is my business making?
2. How can my profit be increased?

Read The Progress.

accounting leads directly to the answer to the first question, and hence it is essential to any well-thought-out plan to increase profits.

The problem of the farmer is to meet conditions on his own farm in a way that will give him the greatest net returns, year in and year out, for the use of his capital, his labor, and his managerial ability. Before he can be considered a successful farm operator he must produce results that will cover the value of all these. Capital can earn interest without labor on the part of its owner, and labor can earn wages without owning any capital. The farmer, utilizing both in the conduct of his business, should secure returns that will cover both interest and wages. Not until both of these have been more than covered can any profit be credited to the farming operations. Nothing but return in excess of interest and wages can properly be considered as net profit.

SOME WAYS WITH VEGETABLES.

For those who enjoy onions the following recipe will be one worth remembering:

Onions Stuffed With Peanut Butter.—Select mild onions of medium size, peel and boil until tender. Cut out the center from each to leave a thin shell of the onion. Chop the onion removed, add an equal quantity of soft fine bread crumbs, and for a pint of the material add a half cupful of peanut butter, half a teaspoonful of salt, and half a teaspoonful of paprika. A chili pepper, chopped fine, may replace the paprika. Mix and fill the onions. Let cook about 15 minutes, basting with hot milk three times. Serve with a cream sauce, using some of the liquid in the pan for part of the sauce.

Rice and Mushroom Croquettes.—If fresh mushrooms are used, peel the caps and break them in pieces. Let cook in butter or vegetable oil until softened, skim from the fat and set aside. To the fat in the pan add half a cupful of rice that has been partly cooked and drained. When the rice has taken up all the fat add two cupfuls of stock, milk or boiling water and a half a teaspoonful of salt; let cook until the liquid is absorbed. When the rice is cooked, stir in the mushrooms lightly with a fork. Shape, roll in crumbs and egg and fry in deep fat. Dried mushrooms may be used, soaking them in water and using the water as part of the liquid in which the rice is cooked.

Egg Plant, Provencal.—Pare and cut in cubes and cook until just tender in boiling water. It will take from ten to twenty minutes. Drain in a colander. For three cupfuls of cubes, chop fine one small onion and add with half a cupful of mushrooms and cook in two tablespoonfuls of fat, then add the egg plant, a cupful of tomato strained, bread crumbs and parsley with salt and paprika. Place in a baking dish, cover with buttered crumbs and bake until well browned.

THE RIPE RASPBERRIES.

"Did you hear the great news?" asked one of the raspberry bushes of another bush.

"No, what is the great news?" asked the other raspberry bush.

"There is going to be a great raspberry hunt today," the first raspberry bush said.

"Well, if they see us they won't have to hunt very far," the second raspberry bush said.

"That is so," answered the first raspberry bush, "and they know we're here. We let some of our messengers tell them. The only thing is they are not sure whether or not we are ripe."

"They said they were not sure we were or not, and so they will be delighted when they find how easily we come off the bushes. For when we're ripe we come off easily and when we're not ripe we stick on and show we don't want to come off."

"That really is what we should do," said the second raspberry bush. "It would be very mean if we came off easily and pretended we were ripe when we weren't. Folks could get us easily and then we might make them sick. It's much kinder to do as we do. And the other berries are apt to do the same way. They don't come off so easily when they aren't ready to eat."

"But anyone can always tell that a raspberry is ripe when it comes off easily and doesn't want to stay on the bush."

"They're going to gather ever and ever so many of us," said the first raspberry bush, "and then they're going to give an entertainment for the benefit of some hospital where there are some sick children. That is why I am so glad we are ripe."

"What sort of an entertainment are they going to give?" asked the second raspberry bush.

"Why, they are going to have an entertainment with all the children wearing red ribbons on their hair and red sashes, so as to match our colors."

"That is what they are going to call their entertainment. Yes, it is to be called a raspberry festival."

"They have sent around notices and they've asked people to come, and they're going to have raspberry ice cream and crushed raspberries over the ice cream."

"They're also going to have raspberry sherbet and raspberry ices. It's going to be a regular raspberry party."

"Everyone is going to come to it, I believe, and all the people who are making the ices and ice creams have been only too glad to do what they could to help, and then the children are going to gather all the raspberries for the party."

"They are going to run it and manage it, and the money will go to the hospital where the sick children are. Isn't that a nice idea?"

"Wonderful," said the second raspberry bush. "And isn't it fine we are all ready and quite ripe and very good? There are so many, many raspberries on both these bushes."

"And if they need more than we can give them," said the first raspberry bush, "we can tell them where they can get more, down the road further along."

"Oh, yes, we will help them all we can. Hush! here they come. Now be ready, all of us, to come off easily, for we're ripe and we want to help them hurry."

The children picked and picked and picked. Oh, how many they got, and the raspberries were so happy as they were dropped into the pails, to think of all the good they were going to do.

"And," said one child, "I think we ought to make enough ice cream, so that not only the money goes to the hospital, but so they have a dish of ice cream apiece. It will be so good. Let us go without our share. If there isn't enough, so that every hospital child gets a good dish of it."

And they all decided to do this. "Ah," said the first raspberry bush, as the last of the berries were taken, "how glad I am that we were all ripe."

"So are we," said the second raspberry bush, "and that there are the other ripe bushes down the road! It's fine to be ripe raspberries, fine, fine!"

Right at That.

"What is ob-scure, Tommie?" the teacher asked.

"It's a place, I guess," Tommie hazarded.

"No, no! Why do you say that?"

"Must be, because that's where a lot of candidates go back to after an election."

CHANGED HER MIND

By ELEANOR C. KEN 'ON.

"Why, Marcia, I can not understand your yawning at such a delightful story. One would think to look at you that you were being led to no slaughter instead of reclining in your favorite pastime," exclaimed Judith Arnold to her friend, Marcia Allen.

"Yes, Judith, I must confess that I am bored, and the story that you consider so delightful has proven to me just the contrary."

"Why, dear, I cannot understand—yet have been such a book worm."

"But Judith," Marcia interposed, "I guess the story is interesting enough—but I have grown so tired of reading about beautiful heroines with skins of alabaster whiteness and so blue eyes, likened to great pools, and wonderful heroes with figures of Adonises, heads of Apollos, and their beautiful white hands, Judith. I wish I could read descriptions as they really are."

"Now, Marcia, just imagine me reading about little 'Miss Plafchody' with straight hair instead of the curly locks and with an ordinary complexion instead of one compared to a rose, and an ordinary mouth instead of the beautifully arched lips, likened to a Cupid's bow—and imagine a hero with big rough hands."

"Yes, I think I would find it very interesting. I would just love to read of a hero with big rough hands, then I would be sure that I was reading about a real man—not a drawing card or a tailor's fashion plate."

"But Judith, it was the big rough hands and the brawny muscles that have accomplished so much—where would the country be if it depended on the matinee idol or the drawing room peacock?" wistfully spoke Marcia.

"And you may be sure Judith," she added, laughingly, "if 'Mr. Right' should ever come along I hope he will have big rough hands."

"Well, dear, I wish you luck, but not fortune. I would much prefer the author's description," replied Judith.

"But, Marcia dear, I must not forget my errand: Aunt Louise has written, inviting us up."

"You know, Hugh has returned from service—quite ill so Auntie writes, and has brought two friends with him, all semi-invalids. One chap, Lieutenant Frederick Parker, who is all alone in the world, and Captain Howard Mason, whose home is in the West. So the dear soul is just babbling over with delight at having Hugh home, and she wants us to come and help her cheer up the boys."

"Isn't that splendid of her," rejoined Marcia. "Of course I'll go. I am glad."

A TINY BIT OF AMERICA
(From the New York Telegram)
When first there was talk about the proposal to have the American dead in France brought back to this country, the late Theodore Roosevelt put his foot down hard as far as his own son was concerned.
He was determined that Quentin Roosevelt's body should not be disturbed, but should remain in the place where it had been buried by the enemy.
Not only so, but he had it removed to one of the great cemeteries in which thousands of the soldiers of the nation lie rank upon rank on the hillsides.
The villages of Chamery, near Pere-en-Tardenois, are grateful for the trust thus placed in them. It is said that not a day passes without the school children of the neighborhood laying flowers on the grave or paying some pious attention to its upkeep.
M. Lefevre, the village blacksmith, has transferred the little plot to the French government for national consideration, and it is supposed will almost rival in interest the grave in the cemetery at Oyster Bay to which Daniel Carter Beaman and the Boy Scouts in pilgrimage on the day after Thanksgiving.

COUNTRY'S DEFICIT IS ESTIMATED TO BE OVER $1,500,000,000
WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Warning the senate that the country faces an unprecedented deficit of more than a billion and quarter dollars. Senator McCumber, acting chairman of the finance committee, in a speech today declared the most rigid economy must be observed in making appropriations and that all taxes due the government must be paid in full when they are due.
There is no hope, Senator McCumber said, that any part of the deficit will be met by repayment of loans made by the United States to foreign countries. They do not seem able to pay even the interest.
The deficit must be overcome, the senator said, by increasing taxes and reducing expenditures wherever possible.

3,500,000 CHILDREN
FACING STARVATION
Vast Relief Effort Launched by Eight Leading American Organizations to Avert Tragedy.

The most spontaneous as well as the largest consolidation of effort in the history of American relief and charitable organizations has grown out of the disaster which threatens 3,500,000 European children this winter. To the headquarters of every agency that dispenses American mercy overseas has come one steady cry for months past:
the children, most helpless and blameless sufferers in the track of war, will perish by the thousands before next harvest unless America saves them!
When Dr. Livingston Farrand, chairman of the Central Committee of the American Red Cross, returned from a recent trip abroad, his report throbbled with the need of the children. From the feeding-stations of the American Relief Administration throughout eastern and central Europe came letters, cables, pleas of every sort. The Protestant churches sent investigators into after-war conditions and every report breathed the impending tragedy of starving and diseased children.
Protestant, Catholic and Jewish, the child life of Europe is threatened with heartrending misery.
The European Relief Council, with Harbert Hoover as chairman and the whole power of American charitable thought and effort behind it, has been formed. It consists of Edgar Richard, representing the American Relief Administration; Dr. Livingston Farrand, representing the American Red Cross; Felix Warburg, representing the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee; Wilbur K. Thomas, representing the American Friends Service Committee; James A. Flaherty, representing the Knights of Columbus; Dr. C.
V. Kilbuck, representing the Young Men's Christian Association; Miss
Sarah S. Lyon, representing the Young Women's Christian Association; Dr.
Arthur Brown, representing the Federal Council of Churches.
It is the purpose of the Council to raise $33,000,000, in an appeal centering at the Christmas holidays, to the end that the situation regarding child life may be met. In every town and community of the nation, it is hoped, local committees, representing all the co-operating agencies, will be formed to secure the vitally necessary funds.
Of the amount sought, $23,000,000 will be used for basic food. For every one of these American dollars the local governments and communities aided will furnish two dollars, in the form of transportation, labor, guards, clerical help, cash contributions and such food supplies as are locally obtainable.
No children receive the free food except after medical tests showing them to be seriously under-nourished. The remaining $10,000,000 of the fund is just as urgently needed for medical service to the children.
The European Relief Council will do much more than effect economies in the raising of the child-saving fund.
It will, with the inspecting forces of eight great agencies, keep a constant eye on the administration of America's merciful gift, in order that there shall be no wastage and no tendency toward superstition.

STATE CONGRESS OF PARENT-TEACHERS
We have observed the successful operation of the Modern Health Crusade in the schools of Pennsylvania and have noted with great satisfaction the improvement in the cleanliness and come), and we recognize this health movement to be a vital factor in the public health; therefore,

Be it resolved by the Pennsylvania Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers Association in session at Williamsport, Pa., November 4, 1920, that we use our best endeavors to extend the Modern Health Crusade and that we urge the inclusion of the Crusade in the health instruction course soon to be placed in the schools by the State Department of Public Instruction; and Be it further resolved, That we com-the Crusade in Pennsylvania, and give
